

SANCHO SAYS

One person is chosen to be "Sancho"; the others stand in a straight line across from him or her. Sancho then calls out an action for the other kids to follow, but they can only do the action if he says "Sancho says..." first. If Sancho says, "touch your ears" and someone touches their ears, whoever does it is out and has to sit down. If Sancho says "Sancho says, touch your ears" then everyone must follow the instruction, and if someone doesn't follow the instruction, they're out. The last person standing gets to be the new "Sancho"!

